2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

The invention relates to a soldered plate heat exchanger designed to improve cooling of the plate portions that are located near inlets for the high temperature fluid. This is achieved by providing separate fluid channels in plate pairs guiding low temperature fluid, said separate channels at least partly surrounding said inlets for the high temperature fluid.

The citations represent the general state of the art only, and the invention defined in claims 1-7 is not disclosed by any of these documents.

The cited prior art does not give any indication that would lead a person skilled in the art to the claimed heat-exchanger device. Therefore, the claimed invention is not obvious to a person skilled in the art.

Hence, the invention defined in claims 1-7 is novel and considered to involve an inventive step. The industrial applicability is evident.
